

Subject: Submission as to Telecom Information Disclosure

We have reviewed the InternetNZ submission and CallPlus supports the proposed approach. As the Commission itself has observed the practice of bundling is becoming increasingly prevalent, in particular for the dominant player that have both mobile & fixed services. Often bundling will be used by dominant players to try to safe harbor price points in order to avoid accusations of price squeeze or flow through into a 'retail minus' regulated price calculation.

As the Commission knows, we have major concerns around possible anti-competitive margin squeeze and bundling of products. We would welcome information reporting by which Telecom must disclose relevant information to assist the Commission with its investigations.
